

Information Technology Data Management Training 2 - 6 June 2014

Frankfurt - Germany

Database managers work within organizations to develop the best ways for information to be stored, used, organized, analyzed, and presented.

Database management training prepares aspiring administrators to examine and tighten the nuts and bolts of database platforms, test and modify the system when necessary, monitor system performance and troubleshoot hardware and software issues as they arise.

Janero Consultancy's database management training will include elements of database design or analysis. The bulk of these tasks are often handled by other professionals, but database managers stand to benefit from a fair understanding of the whole database spectrum.

You are very welcome to spend some business and relaxing hours in the company of your choice in the different networking platforms. We can arrange a business breakfast, or organise a business meeting and/or evening sunset party for knowledge sharing and deal-making.

Please register early!
Due to recent changes in visa processing in Nigeria, delegates are strongly advised to obtain relevant visas 3-weeks prior to the event date.

Why should you attend?

Database managers and administrators make extensive use of organizational and problem-solving skills, so people who find job satisfaction in achieving results through those methods are most likely to enjoy database management courses. Efficient multitaskers are also strong candidates for database management training, since these positions tend to involve the handling of multiple duties simultaneously.

On completion of this course you will:

- Recognise the importance of good practice in managing research data in general and apply it within your own work context.
- Apply knowledge gained to be able to draw up a data management plan and maintain it throughout the project life.
- Be able to organise and document your data efficiently during the course of your project.
- Be aware of the options available to you to securely store and back up your data.
- Be able to use SPSS, NVivo, R, or ArcGIS softwares for data handling.

Who can attend?

- This programme is suitable for all marketing professionals who wholly or partly have responsibility for data collection, storage and use, and whose effectiveness is dependent on best practice data management.
- Since many database systems make use of Internet connections, some database management courses will also familiarize students with basic concepts of network administration.
- Network administrator positions typically exist alongside database management positions, but understanding the fundamentals of the network administrator's role can help database managers communicate more effectively with their peers at the workplace.

SPECIAL CUSTOM PROGRAMS

In addition to our normally scheduled training programs held in Germany, JANERO Consultancy designs specialized programs at the request of international organizations, national governments, and other institutions, for practical professional training. Such training is customized to meet the specific needs of our clients. JANERO Consultancy trains both in Europe and on-site in some host countries.

Surprise your business partners by learning how to understand the difference between privacy and confidentiality and how they apply to the management of research data!

About Us

The JANERO Consultancy offers a broad range of training activities annually. These international seminars have attracted several participants from all over Europe, making JANERO one of Europe's inspiring African Diaspora training providers on Euro-Africa programmes.

Building on the highly successful launch of training activities, the JANERO Consultancy through the “Euro-African Business School Center for Management (EABSCM)” is delighted to announce its expanded programme of high level Executive Portfolio for 2014.

The programme aims to deliver cutting edge courses to global professionals from both the private and public sectors. Taught in a truly international environment at the hearts of world cities in both Africa and Europe, each week-long course will provide executives with a great opportunity to learn and network with not only top university faculties from Europe and North America, but also with professionals from across the globe.

Innovatively taught by some of the world's leading experts, each course is tailor-made for professionals who understand that in a fiercely competitive environment the more dedicated knowledge they can acquire, the better they will be able to adapt and thrive. Courses are designed to be intensive, but highly flexible, to serve participants needs.

JANERO's development and management staff experience in management, Advocacy, Information Technology projects in Africa, as well as the development of European Union (EU) projects, including the in-depth knowledge of EU-African policies, are the main assets of the course series.
